Before you start

Solve luggage first. This route is designed to make the final day calmer, not fuller.

Route steps

1 Santa Maria Novella
A calm final anchor near the station.

2 Mercato Centrale
Useful for a simple food reset.

3 San Lorenzo
Keep it short and reversible.

4 SMN Station
End here with a real departure buffer.

Choose your version

Version 1
Train departure from SMN
For a final morning before leaving by train.

Version 2
Florence Airport departure
For departures where the airport buffer matters more than one last attraction.

Version 3
Late train or late flight
For the day when you have time, but not enough freedom for chaos.

Version 4
Exhausted final morning
For the morning when the trip has already taken what it needed.

Decision flow

Check-out
Start with your real check-out time, not with a fantasy final itinerary.

Bags
Leave them with accommodation, use storage, or keep the day tiny.

Departure type
Train departures orbit SMN. Airport departures orbit the transfer buffer.

One soft anchor
Choose Santa Maria Novella, Mercato Centrale or San Lorenzo only if timing is safe.

Exit
Collect bags early, move toward departure, and protect the buffer.

Luggage logic

Accommodation holds bags

This is the easiest version. Keep the route near your return point.

Storage needed

Choose storage near SMN or your departure direction, not far across town.

Carry-on only

A tiny walk can work. Avoid tight interiors and crowded food lines.

Airport departure

Do not let one last stop eat the airport transfer buffer.

Route constraints

No major timed museum unless departure is genuinely late.

No far detours after bags are stored.

Do not drag luggage through the historic centre.

Check official transport first.

The departure buffer wins over one last attraction.
